Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely a Latin botanical or medical treatise. The text is arranged in approximately 15 lines, with some words appearing to be repeated or in a specific sequence. The script is dense and difficult to decipher without specialized knowledge of the language and its historical variants.

Handwritten text in a historical script, likely a botanical or medical treatise. The text is arranged in several lines across the top of the page, above the illustration. It appears to be a Latin or Greek manuscript, possibly describing the plant's properties or its use in medicine. The script is dense and difficult to decipher without specialized knowledge of the language.

The text is written in a medieval script, likely a form of Gothic or similar, and is arranged in several lines. It appears to be a list or a series of entries, possibly related to the botanical illustration below. The text is somewhat faded and difficult to decipher precisely, but it seems to contain names and descriptions of various items, possibly medicinal or agricultural.

The text is written in a medieval Gothic script, likely a form of Old English or Old Norse, and is arranged in a column on the left side of the page. The text is partially obscured by the illustration of a tree on the right. The text appears to be a list or a series of entries, possibly related to the tree or its parts, as suggested by the accompanying illustration. The text is written in a dark ink on a light-colored parchment background.

The first part of the text is a dense block of handwritten script, likely a list or a series of entries. The text is written in a cursive hand and is difficult to decipher due to its density and the angle of the page. It appears to be a list of names or items, possibly related to a collection or inventory.

This section continues the list or entries from the previous block. The handwriting remains consistent, and the text is organized in a similar fashion, suggesting a continuation of the same document or list.

The third section of text follows, maintaining the same handwritten style. It appears to be a separate entry or a continuation of the list, with some lines that are more clearly legible than others.

The final section of text on the page concludes the list or entries. The handwriting is consistent throughout, and the text is organized in a similar fashion to the previous sections.

The text on the left side of the page is a dense block of handwritten script, likely a Latin manuscript. It appears to be a list or a series of instructions related to the diagram. The text is written in a cursive hand and is somewhat difficult to decipher due to the handwriting and the ink bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.

Three distinct botanical illustrations on the left page. Each illustration features a central stem with alternating red and white horizontal stripes. The stems are topped with various green leaves and some have small, light-colored flowers or seed pods. The drawings are done in a simple, illustrative style with some watercolor-like coloring.

Three botanical illustrations on the middle page. These plants have long, thin, yellowish-brown stems that curve or twist. They are accompanied by green leaves of various shapes, some with serrated edges. The illustrations are rendered in a similar style to the first page, with some color washes.

Three botanical illustrations on the right page. These plants have thick, bulbous, yellowish stems. Some have small, round, reddish-brown flowers or fruits. The foliage consists of green leaves, some of which are broad and rounded. The drawings are consistent in style with the other pages.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical or scientific record, located between the top row of illustrations.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, located in the middle section of the page, between the second and third rows of illustrations.

Handwritten text describing the plant's properties and uses.

Handwritten text on the left margin, possibly a list of items or a reference.

Handwritten text in the lower left quadrant, likely a description of the plant's parts or its medicinal uses.

Handwritten text in the lower right quadrant, continuing the description or providing additional details.

Handwritten text in the lower right quadrant, possibly a separate note or a different part of the description.

This is a botanical illustration of a plant with a thick, reddish-brown root system and several upright stems. The stems are green and bear clusters of small, blue flowers. The leaves are green and lobed. The illustration is rendered in a style typical of 16th-century botanical manuscripts.

The text is written in a medieval Gothic script, likely a form of Latin or Old French, and is arranged in several lines across the top of the page. The script is dense and characteristic of the late Middle Ages.

A vertical column of text is written in the left margin of the page, following the binding edge. It appears to be a commentary or a list of related items, written in the same medieval script as the main text.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a Latin or Greek medical treatise, describing the properties and uses of the plants shown.
